Philippe Timmermans

BELGIUM 1957

Philippe Timmermans (1957, Wilrijk, Belgium) is a sculptor, famous for his male sculptures of exceptional anatomical precision. He studied sculpture at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Ghent, where he laid the foundations for his artistic career.

For over 30 years, Philippe created three-dimensional prototypes and completed sculptural assignments for museums, amongst others. He decided to end this collaboration in 2011 so he could focus fully on his own artistic vision and work.

His sculptures are rooted in the classical sculptural tradition, but with a contemporary interpretation. Philippe places strong emphasis on male sculptures in his work, masterfully capturing the anatomy and expression of the male body. With his in-depth knowledge of the human body and ability to portray subtle emotions, he creates powerful and authentic sculptures that are both technically impressive and emotionally resonant.
